FAVORITE DAHLIAS
Retail List 1935

We specialize in producing the very best dahlia roots possible. Proper fertilization and the best of cultivation, with the finest of storage facilities enable us to have the finest of roots, roots that will grow healthy, robust plants, and excellent flowers of wondrous beauty.

We grow the roots that we offer for sale, thus eliminating all dealers profits and a great deal of rough handling, also you know that we have not bought them to resell, because they were cheap. This is why our Dahlia roots are so good and so reasonably priced.

As a special inducement to order early we are giving -
FREE ROOTS 15% FREE ROOTS
Your choice, of any listed in this catalog, with cash orders received before May 1st.

Visitors are always welcome to our gardens. You are cordially invited to visit us this summer. We are in the Warrentown section of Middleboro, Mass.

We have cut flowers in season, at reasonable prices.

Orders close June 1. Add 10 cents for postage on orders of less than $1.00. On orders $1.00 and over we will pay postage, although if you will include 7c for the first root and 1c for each additional we will include free, one 25c root for each 10c postage.

We take great care in handling and packing; but cannot be responsible for conditions beyond our control. Also will not be responsible for a greater amount than purchase price.

Cash must accompany each order, or if C. O. D., charges are to be paid by buyer.

If by chance we are sold out of any particular kind, we will, with your permission, substitute a similar one, the same price or higher.

Shipping starts April 25th and unless otherwise specified your order will be shipped after that except those going far south.

If you are not interested maybe you would pass this catalog to someone else.

We have had many letters of praise from satisfied customers. However, we realize that in some instances we may have fallen short of our goal, of complete satisfaction to everyone. If you by any chance believe you are entitled to an adjustment, do not hesitate to write us giving full particulars.

MANAGER.

SUGGESTED CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

FOR GROWING DAHLIAS

Dahlias are easy to grow and do well in most any kind of soil. They do not like cold damp ground, or deep shade. Coal ashes or sand is good to mix with heavy soil.

Do not plant too early, as dahlias are a Fall flower, and grow best when the ground and weather are warm. Mid May is early enough for the northern states, and even if planted by June 15th will grow well and bloom freely.

Half the battle of any gardening is proper cultivation, and the right time to start is before anything is planted. Have the ground soft and mellow, then dig holes, or a trench about six inches deep, being sure that the soil is soft several inches deeper. Lay the Dahlia roots flat (not on end) in the trench and from two to three feet apart. Cover two or three inches deep and a small amount of fertilizer may be spread in the row now, and covered lightly with soil. The holes or trench will be filled in a little at a time as you hoe until the plants are over a foot high. Later, during August it is well to "hill" the plants, it helps to keep the now large plants from blowing over and to drain off any surplus water if the season is wet. The rows should be from three to four feet apart. Cultivate well until the flowers come, but be careful not to injure the tender feed roots near base of plants. After this keep out weeds, and rake just enough to keep the top soil loose.

It is well to stake the dahlias, the best time is when you plant.

Many different methods of fertilization are recommended. We find commercial fertilizer the most practical, a good potato fertilizer is fine. Nitrogen is a necessary element, but too much produces large soft plants and blooms, fresh animal manure contains too much. Phosphates are needed for early root formation, and gives plants a vigorous start, also improves yield and hastens maturity. Potash is perhaps the most essential to add as it gives the plants the ability to form sugars and starches for root formation, gives stiffness to the stalks, makes plants more robust and helps plants, among other things, to resist disease. Wood ashes contain much potash and are very good for the dahlia garden. Soil contains all of these elements, but usually they are not available in proper quantities. A good dahlia fertilizer contains about two percent available nitrogen, about eight percent phosphates and from ten to twelve percent potash. A bone base is very desirable. For poor soil well rotted manure is good to be well spaded in when the garden is made in the spring, or spade in fertilizer, and small amounts sowed on row after planting, as mentioned above is good as each rain carries a little directly to the growing roots, but use care as too much here may burn the tender feed roots. Small amounts of bone meal spread around plants after they start to bloom is good. It helps to make larger flowers and gives them a finer color. Spread at ten day or two week intervals and lightly raked in, is very helpful.

If soil has been properly taken care of and roots are planted five to six inches, watering is only needed in extreme drouth. If you must water, soak the ground to a depth of several inches at ten day or two week periods. Rake lightly next day to keep crust from forming.

Cut the old flowers off with stems as they go by.

Cut flowers for bouquets in early morning or late afternoon, or when sun is not shining if possible. They will keep better if put in a cool damp place free from air currents after cutting for a few hours.

Disbudding is practised for extra large flowers and longer stems. If the smaller buds at ends of branches are pinched out, and the larger left it should make the bud left grow larger than it naturally would. If possible see an experienced dahlia grower do this.

There are many good preparations on the market for cut worms. Strips of tar paper placed two inches below and one inch above the ground around the young plants will in most cases keep out cut worms.

While the corn borer is more or less bothersome in the East, it is seasonal and may spoil some flowers one year, it may not be seen the next year. We do not know of any practical way to keep them from the dahlias. They live over winter in old plant stalks and weeds, etc., so make it a point to clean all waste from garden each fall, either burn, or spade under to a depth of six inches. When you see a branch badly wilted cut it off and split it open there you will probably find mr. corn borer.

Leave the Dahlia roots in the ground for at least ten days after frost has entirely killed the plants. Use a spading fork for digging, one person on each side of the clump, working together will save many necks from being broken. Shake roots lightly as you dig them to get off surplus dirt, then cut stems as short as convenient with pruning shears. Do not leave in sun to dry, many roots are spoiled by excessive drying, store immediately in a moist cool place, with the stem part down, so that any juice will drain and pack as close to-gether as you can. Examine frequently during the winter for rot and if any appears cut it out with a sharp knife. Do not allow to freeze.

When ready to plant, examine clumps well and with a sharp knife cut through stem (crown) to separate the individual roots, leaving a part of the crown on each piece to plant. One or two strong sproats to a hill is enough and if they are long and slender cut off close to the crown. A guard made from the thumb of a leather glove is good to wear to prevent cutting of the thumb.

We are always glad to answer questions regarding dahlias, and will do so to the best of our ability.

The past season was the most successful that we have ever had and we are looking forward to even better success this season. We wish to thank all who have contributed to our success.

RECENT INTRODUCTIONS

J. K. ALEXANDER JR., Hybrid Decorative. Alexander 1934.

This new Dahlia comes from the East, introduced by one of the oldest and largest growers in the country, with over fifty years experience. It is the largest deep crimson red Hybrid Decorative, with a fleck of orange in the center of each petal, ever offered. Blooms are 12 to 14 inches across without disbudding and also has much depth and substance. Stems are large, long and very rigid, there is no droop to the bloom. Plants are medium size and foliage is tough and is not bothered with insects. This is another $10.00 Dahlia at depression prices.

Roots $3.00—Plants $1.50

CHIEF JUSTICE, Informal Decorative. Sampson 1934.

This produces some of the largest flowers that we have ever seen and is a good bloomer. The color is a coffee-tan. Medium size plants, healthy and husky. Stems are long and good size.

Roots $3.00

DAHLIAS

1935 Wholesale price list, for the trade only.

Terms: All prices F. O. B. Middleboro, Mass., 25% cash will hold order, balance before shipping, excepting our regular customers and those having established credit. All orders subject to prior sale, and although we do not anticipate any changes in prices, prices are subject to change without notice. This list cancels all previous prices.

Shipments will be made at any time customer desires them, rush orders filled very promptly usually in less than twelve hours. We cannot be responsible for goods in transit.

Our stock is excellent, all stunt has been removed, and it has been properly cultivated and fertilized. The roots are large and plump. We carefully clean and trim them and do not sell any with broken necks or dried and wilted ones. The drouth did not effect us this summer and we had no frosted ones last winter to weaken our stock. All are field grown dahlias. Our stock is handled by experienced men and is as good as can be had at any price.

Our reputation is built on satisfaction. All stock is guaranteed to be true to name and to leave our farms in good growing condition, and any found to be otherwise will be cheerfully replaced, however we cannot be responsible for conditions beyond our control, and in no case for an amount greater than the original purchase price.

We grow over 300 varieties of dahlias and have listed here over 150 kinds, which includes a large range of types at very reasonable prices. Should you need some variety not listed here, write us, we may be able to supply you. Write for discounts on large orders and early payments.

JANE ROSS, Informal Decorative. Ross 1935

This new Red was produced in the middle west and promises to take its place among the top notchers, because of its wonderful spreading plant habit, good stems and freeness of bloom. In color its introducer describes it to us as similar to the well known Emperor, but as having less of a purple cast, a rich red, overlaid with velvety maroon red. It is similar in formation to the Emperor but grows much larger and comes into bloom from four to five weeks earlier and has a much better stem. Mr. Ross is an old Dahlia grower who has been producing seedlings for thirty years and says that this is the best he has ever seen or produced. Stock of this variety is quite large, so we have persuaded him to let us offer a ten dollar dahlia the first year at a second year price.

Retail Only Roots $5.00—Plants $2.50

MRS. J. K. ALEXANDER, Informal Decorative. Alexander 1934.

This Dahlia is one of the largest buttercup-yellows ever produced. It is very free flowering, producing many blooms 12 to 16 inches across without disbudding. Strong healthy plants, easy to grow, fine long stems. Disease and insect resistant. An outstanding creation; truly a real Dahlia. Should sell for double our price.

Roots $3.00—Plants $1.50

MRS. H. C. BACON, Formal Decorative, Eastvale Farms 1935.

This new Dahlia was planted by a grower of wide experience who died before he had a chance to see his best seedling. We have watched it for three years and have grown it for two, and it has done better every year. The bloom is a deep buff-orange color, shading slightly deeper at the center and the reverse is light buff, very formal every bloom exactly alike. The stems are very long and strong and of good size and will cut up to 30 inches. Blooms are about 8 inches across without disbudding and have excellent keeping qualities, making an ideal cut flower. We have counted twenty-four blooms on one plant all at the same time. Plant grows four and one half to five and one half feet tall and have excellent spreading habits; are very hardy, disease and insect resistant. It is an excellent Dahlia.

Roots $3.00—Plants $1.50

ROXY, Formal Decorative.

An exceptionally fine Dahlia which is very popular where ever it is known. The plant is medium size, very healthy and insect and disease resistant. The bloom is about 8 inches across without disbudding and grows upright. Color; blends of yellowish pink, gold and old rose, with a tint of lavender and salmon. The stems are very stiff and long, making it one of the best for bouquets. Our price is very reasonable.

Roots $1.00

SALEM PRIDE, Formal Decorative. Sickler.

This spectacular Dahlia is a dandy. Blooms are large and deep when disbudded. Color is a reddish violet, streaked and lightly tipped white. Plant is compact and of medium size. We have a nice stock of this dahlia.

CACTUS DAHLIAS

Cactus Dahlias are divided into three general classes; incurved cactus dahlias are fully double flowers, with the margins of most of the petals revolute for one half or more of their length, and tending to curve toward the center of the flower. Recurved and straight cactus dahlias; same as incurved, except that petals are straight or recurved. Semi-cactus, are fully double flowers, with petals revolute for less than one half their length. Key; IC— incurved; SC— Semi-cactus; C— straight cactus.

SINGLE MINIATURES

These petite singles are seedlings from Coltness Hybrids, sweet little flowers on long stems. Plants are dwarf, seldom growing over eighteen inches tall and many about one foot, bearing flowers in great profusion. Blooms are all colors from darkest maroon to brightest crimson, pure yellow, orange, lavender, some bi-color and all the colors that dahlias are. They bloom early and continuous. Colors not separated, roots 20 cents each; 3 for 45 cents; 6 for 75 cents.

These miniatures will also do well from seed, and bloom the first year. They may be started in the house at any time and transplanted when danger of frost is over, or planted in the garden when ground is warm will give wonderful flowers the latter part of the summer and autumn. The flowers will be just as satisfactory as from roots. Generous packet 20 cents. Three for 50 cents.

GLADIOLUS

Gladiolus are wonderful flowers and make the choicest of cut flowers. Their keeping qualities when cut are well known. While we love them and always plan to grow them we can not give them as much attention as we do our dahlias. The following gladiolus are all very fine ones:

Albania, pure white.
Derriitt, rose lilac on white	Opalescent, rosy lavender.
Helga, appleblossom pink and salmon	Seabrook Gem, dark rose.
Joe Coleman, dark red.	Yellow Hammer, pure yellow.
Le Marshall Foche, clear light pink.	Tarus, deep rich magenta.
	Willbrink Pink, blotched cream.

One each of the ten, labeled with name, 50 cents.
 Without labels 5 cents each, 35 cents per dozen, $2.50 per 100.
 Blooming size, 25 cents per dozen, $1.75 per 100.
 Other fine mixtures, large size $2.00 per 100; 25 for 50c; blooming size $1.00 per 100; 25 for 35 cents.

CANNAS

While we grow cannas only for our own special use, we have accumulated a surplus of the tall dark red plant, with the small bright red flowers. These plants grow to five feet and over, and are fine for screening or hiding unsightly places. Price 5c per root, 50c per dozen; $3.50 per 100.

PAEONIES

We purchased a group of mixed paeonies some time ago, but have not separated the various kinds or colors. They are all fine kinds and some are excellent. We are offering these with three or more eyes to a root at 15c each; 2 for 25c; nine for $1.00. The colors include white, red, pink, and various shades and blends. We cannot pick out colors at this time, so do not order by color as we cannot tell their color. Paeonies do best to be planted during October.

SWEET WILLIAM

Our Sweet Williams are of the choicest, double and single blooms, reds, whites, lavenders, pinks, maroons and most every combination that one can imagine, large flowers, excellent husky plants. 10c per plant, $1.00 a dozen.

We saved seeds from these Sweet Williams, have tested it and found it to be excellent. Plants are very easy to grow from seed, but unless planted quite early may not bloom the first season. Sweet Williams are excellent late May and June flowering plants, very fragrant and very pretty and attractive, and are unsurpassed for their good keeping qualities as a cut flower. The plants live over winter. Generous packets of seeds 10c each.

DAHLIA SEEDS

This seed is specially selected from large flowering decorative varieties. Any seedling may produce a better dahlia than any now known, and it is very thrilling to watch each bud develop, hoping that it may be the best dahlia yet produced. Of course many seeds produce only single flowers, but when one does grow a fine dahlia of superior merit, it surely repays one for all their anxious waiting. We can give no guarantee as to fertility of the seeds, or whether they will grow, but we have taken great care to gather only fully mature seeds and shall plant many of them ourselves. Price 10 seeds 15c; $1.25 per 100.

SHIRLEY POPPY SEEDS

We grew many fine shirley poppies last season. The dainty blooms that look like crepe paper flowers are very beautiful, while a bloom lasts only a short time, it seems as though there are two more to take its place. Colors are white, reds, pinks, lavenders, and many flowers are edged with contrasted shades. Some are double and others single. Plants grow about a foot high and bear dozens of blooms. Easy to grow. Seeds, mixed colors only, generous packets 10c.

PORTULACA SEED

Our portulaca was unsurpassed last season so we saved much seed from it. There were double, little rose like flowers also single lily like ones, red ones, yellow, pink, rose and many intermediate colored ones. These plants creep on the ground and make a solid row a foot or more wide in good soil, and on bright days are just covered with the bright glistening flowers. Very easy to grow, although the seed is as fine as powder. Packets 10c.

FOUR O'CLOCK SEED

This excellent flower is very unusual, the flowers opening during the late afternoon and night, closing again in the late morning, except on cloudy days, when they stay open all day. They are very sweet scented, and lovely. The plants are strong and spreading, growing about two feet tall and about as wide.

Very easy to grow. Seeds should be planted quite thick and the small plants thinned out or transplanted. Generous packets of seeds 10c; three for 25c.

The Second Annual Mid West Dahlia Show will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, September 14-15, 1935.
